The Raymon Grace Newsletter

Howdy Folks,

This is a follow up to a past article on negative "energetic patterns."

The last newsletter included a letter from Alex talking about how he and his sisters had used the information from my DVDs to benefit their family and school.

Here is a letter from a ranking school administrator. If we could train both students and administrators to combine their efforts, the schools in this country would be much better. This work has helped a number of other schools and now we are getting well written letters from those who are doing it in their own words.

“I bring to education a multiple perspective. I am a public school administrator; I possess a doctorate in Educational Leadership, and an adjunct professor at a private University. In addition, I was the compliance officer and assistant football coach at a State University, an independent business owner and a phase I and II corporate trainer.

I have been employed in our school district as a public school administrator for 15 years. I met Mr. Raymon Grace about 3 years ago when I took his workshop. At that time I was attending the workshop for personal reasons and as the presentation continued I started to make connections to my professional life as a public school administrator.

I have been very familiar with the work of Jose Silva and mental energy work to bring about the fruition of a person's goals or needs. This energy work goes back to biblical times and many of the saints use this in their work. Our public school had approximately 1250 referrals per year in 2000. We are a small urban school but our small population still demonstrated inappropriate middle school safe school violations that needed to be addressed. We implemented a positive behavioral system that began to improve behavior but the behaviors seemed to plateau. It was then that I became acquainted with Mr. Raymon Grace and his work. In the workshop I attended he referenced what he had done with his daughter's school. That is when I bought his CD's, book about his daughter and began to implement what I learned. I realized that I actually needed his help and guidance in order to quickly make the changes I wanted to see happen for our schools climate and culture. Last year we had 234 referrals for what I would term "normal" middle school behavior. We had no fights or safe schools violations. We have a school for teaching and learning.’’

The energy of past events don't just affect schools and offices, they affect the land and the people living on the land.

When visiting Western Canada some years ago, I was amazed at the friendliness of the people in grocery stores, restaurants, banks and everywhere I went. A discussion of this with my friends Bill & Winnie Askin informed me that Canada had never had a war. The land wasn't polluted with the horrors of the past.

The energy felt different. My friend Jeff was with me on that trip and after being there about ten days, he commented that he really hadn't missed carrying his gun. That reminded me that I hadn't missed carrying mine either----this was strange for both of us as we had been armed for years.

The more I thought about it, the more it became clear that we are affected by events of the past that had nothing to do with us, we just live on land where they happened. If we live in an area where people have been poor for generations, we are likely to develop a poverty mentality. If we live where wars have been fought, we are likely to have a tendency to be defensive.

Now energy of the land isn't the only thing that affects people but it is certainly one of the significant factors. Have noticed people from certain countries in Europe have problems that people from other countries don't have. Why? Probably because their ancestors lived under oppressive governments, two world wars and centuries of abuse. These people are also affected by the inherited memory of the events their ancestors suffered.

Since energy is impressed upon matter, it seems reasonable that the energy of fear, terror and sadness would affect the land and water. This energy in turn, affected future generations. We are all the product of our heritage, culture and past lives. All these things are forms of energy and energy can be changed by the intelligent human mind.

Here in the mountains of Southwest Virginia where I live, we have similar problems such as a massacre of the settlers in 1781. One of my ancestors was killed by the Shawnee in 1792. There were two Civil War battles fought within 8 miles of my house. These events are forms of energy and affect the land and those who live on the land for generations.

Since all things are composed of energy and the intelligent human mind can direct energy, then can we neutralize this energy and transform it into something better? Yes, I believe we can, keep reading.

About a year ago a lady contacted me, asking questions about her farm. Seems the horses would not go into the riding ring, the grass wouldn't grow, no one wanted to visit and things just weren't going well. The place had been sold 5 times in the last 10 years. No one wanted to stay there.

First thing I found was an 'energy vortex'. I have found very few energy vortex in my dowsing career. I neutralized it and re-programmed it to produce a better energy.

Next, I told her she had one horse that was a real problem. She agreed, saying she had bought the horse normally valued at $10,000, for 25 cents and had a bill of sale to prove it.

Told her the horse had 20 curse on it. Neutralized the curses and did a general energy clearing of the farm.

This lady showed up in class six months later telling the class that her horses were calm and had no fear of the riding ring, the grass was the best in the area and people came to visit and didn't want to leave.

The 25 cent horse had become the best horse she had ever owned. She brought a picture of the horse to show everyone.

Yep, it's all about energy.
