

The Raymon Grace Newsletter

December, 2018

Howdy Folks,

For the past 45 years I have been interested in how we can use our minds to improve our lives. Wish I could have gotten smarter faster, but it took a while to get enough to work with.

An experiment with Gratitude had worked so I started sharing it with friends.

A few days before Thanksgiving this year, we made a short video on Gratitude. The film is self-explanatory and you can watch it here.

It's really simple; just give THANKS for what you have and what you might need.

The next day I received an email about scientific experiments that had found the same thing. The researches found people who were thankful would experience a 'high' for several days.

Another experiment showed that people who made a list of things they were grateful for were more optimistic and achieved more.

Another experiment showed that people who were thanked by their boss, would perform better at work. [I learned that when I was a construction foreman]

This all makes sense because energy follows thought and the first rule of success is to think of what you want, not what you don't want.

Now I never spent any money on my experiment and didn't do any survey or calculate the math.

I just did it! Pretty much the way I learned to energize water. My philosophy is to keep it simple. But it was nice to know that the folks who did spend time and money came up with the same thing.

Oh, I also found that Gratitude has a Spirit and we can invite it in, and THANK the Spirit of Gratitude. So do that, invite it in once and then thank it every day for being there.

Feel free to share the video with anyone open minded enough to watch it.

Enjoy the Holidays.

Raymon
